Hurricane Brushes Atlantic Coast With Winds, Waves, Rain

EARTHQUAKE CLEANUP—Rescue teams search the debris of the Hotel Boudoin in Orleansville, Algeria, for the bodies of 40 persons, killed in the collapse of the building during the earthquake which rocked the whole area and took 1000 lives and left half the city in ruins.

Aid Sent Algeria, More Than 1,000 Died In Quake

ORLEANSVILLE, Algeria (AP) — Shops opened up again and braver citizens went about their everyday activity in this quake-shattered city of northern Algeria Saturday.

Gov. Gen. Roger Leonard told a news conference the death toll from the disastrous 12-second jolt that wrecked Orleansville and surrounding villages Thursday would reach "substantially more than 1,000.

The devastation blanketed an area from the Mediterranean coast at Tenes to Orleansville, about 40 miles inland, and west from here 10 miles, he declared.

Leonard said seismologists assured him the repeated small tremors of the past two days are ending. The Seismographic Institute of Algiers counted 69 mild shocks from the Thursday quake until Friday night.

New tremors were felt shortly after midnight and at irregular intervals thereafter, causing more damage to already smashed and crumbling buildings.

The town hall and other public buildings have been turned into chapels housing the caskets of the many unidentified dead, mostly from packed Arab areas where whole families perished.

Buzzards slowly circled stricken villages around Orleansville.

French army convoys poured medicine, food, tents and other supplies into the area. U. S. and British military authorities ordered support to the relief operations. Four U. S. Air Force rescue planes with medical personnel and supplies already have arrived and four more were on the way from nearby Tripoli. The British Admiralty announced four Royal Air Force planes had flown 10 tons of blankets and Red Cross stores into Algiers.

83rd Congress Set Record For Anti-Red Bills Passed; Jenner

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Jenner (R-Ind) Saturday credited the recent Congress with setting a record for anti-Communist and anti-subversive actions.

Jenner, chairman of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, cited 10 different antisubversive bills now signed into law and six others passed by the Senate but not acted on by the House.

"So far as I am able to determine, no other Congress has made such an intensive effort to deal with the Communist conspiracy," Jenner said in a statement.

He said this record "certainly disposes of the often heard claim that congressional hearings have no legislative purpose."

Several of the new anti-subversive laws were direct results of investigations and hearings by the Senate Internal Security group, some of which started several years ago, Jenner said.

All these bills, Jenner said, resulted from hearings that "showed Communist leadership in such unions as the American Communications Assn., the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, the United Public Workers of America, and the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America."

On the Senate floor, Sen. Humphrey (D - Minn), aided by Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R - Me) forced broadening of the bill to include the Communist party itself, over opposition of some administration leaders who feared it would drive the party underground and make its operations more difficult to watch.

Jenner also cited the immunity bill by which "a reluctant witness can be required to testify" and a bill "requiring the registration of printing equipment used in producing Communist propaganda" as other acts resulting from hearings before his Red-hunting group.

A separate Senate report released today by Sen. Gillette (D. Iowa) indicated adequate protection of internal security now exists in laws covering treason, sedition, sabotage, espionage, trading with the enemy, and security in government and industry.

Viet Nam's Premier Fires Army Chief

SAIGON, Indochina (AP)—Premier Ngo Dinh Diem fired his army chief of staff Saturday in a sudden climax to mounting post-Geneva political warfare between rival anti-Communist factions in Viet Nam.

The Premier ordered Gen. Nguyen Van Hinh, chief of the general staff since 1952, to take a plane to Paris Sunday for "six months study in France." Friends of the general said he would not obey.

Diem's announcement caused a sensation in Saigon and there was concern that the struggle between the two leaders might lead to disorders.

There were reports Gen. Nguyen Van Vy, former head of Vietnamese troops in the central sector, has refused Diem's order to take over Hinh's command and has been placed under arrest.

The major policy differences at stake apparently center on how to keep the Communist-led Vietminh forces in the North Viet Nam occupation area from taking over the southern zone as well. The country was split by the armistice that took effect last month.

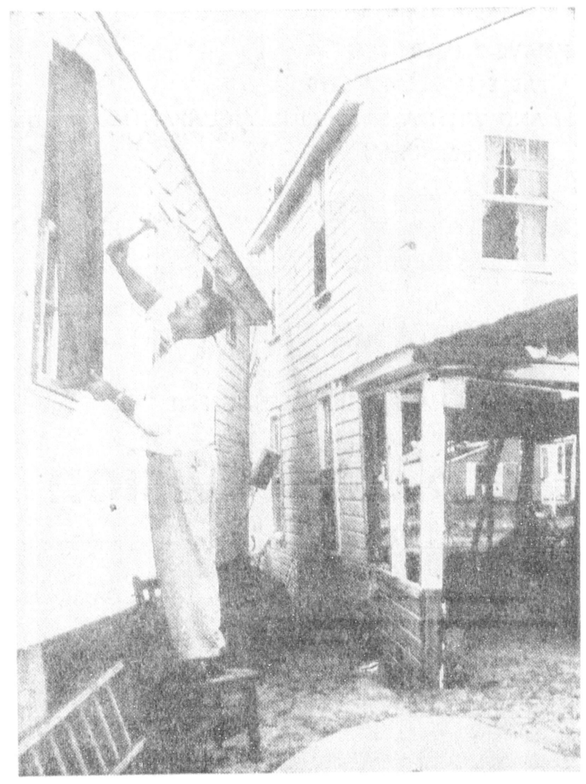

Anti-Diem elements argue that what they consider a "strong" regime—on the model of Syngman Rhee's South Korean government—alone can stave off Red victory in elections set for next year under the truce pact. Some leaders opposed to Diem believe he must be replaced by force if necessary to put into effect measures that will stop Communist infiltration.

Backers of Hinh deny that he is plotting against the government, but say indignantly that he will not obey the order to fly to Paris. They concede there are deep differences between Hinh and Diem.

FINE 2 FOR BOOKMAKING

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—County Judge Stanley Thomas Saturday fined Ernest B. Dinora and Kenneth E. Cox $500 apiece on their pleas of guilty to informations charging bookmaking.

In pre-sentencing arguments, State's Atty. George P. Coutrakon presented copies of federal wagering tax returns indicating that the Turf Club, operated by Dinora and Cox, grossed $153,000 in a 28 month period ended last February.

Warnings, Evacuation Lessened Damage

BOSTON (AP) — Hurricane Florence, torn in two by its own fury, grazed northeast coast in a breathtaking near-miss Saturday and churned angrily past southern Maine.

As the storm headed into the Bay of Fundy and Nova Scotia, one of its two eyes passed directly over Bar Harbor, Maine, summer play ground of millionaires, the state's civil defense chief reported.

In darkened Bangor, in the path of the other eye, civil defense crews sweated to evacuate residents of low lying areas along the Penobscot River.

Maine was cut off from the rest of New England by road and rail. Floods and washouts cut tracks and highways in so many places officials could not keep count. Public agencies were chary of estimates but damage to property and crops seemed certain to run into millions.

The season's fifth hurricane brushed the Atlantic coastline from New Jersey north with high winds, waves and torrental rains up to seven inches. Detailed warnings and shoreline evacuation kept the damage down.

Southern New England, grimly respectful of Caribbean storms after devastating blows in 1938, 1944 and only 11 days ago, watched open-mouthed as the big blow slid past with far less apparent damage than had been feared.

Storm deaths totalled nine, most of them in highway accidents. Three New Englanders died, including a man who came in contact with a dangling electric wire.

Nantucket lightship, guide for westbound liners at the "Crossroads of the Atlantic" 43 miles south of Nantucket Island, radioed a distress call with steering gear smashed. An Air Force B29 weather reconnaissance plane at the scene reported later her crew appeared in no immediate danger.

Edna became twins as she crossed Cape Cod. A weather plane noted two "eyes" or centers about a dozen miles apart, and meteorologists suggested she had been rent by her own violence.

On Cape Cod, tree limbs snapped and power lines fell but so far as reports showed hours later the damage apparently was not comparable to that inflicted by Edna's older sister, Carol, the third of the season, on Aug. 31.

The storm brought New York City its heaviest rainfall in one day in 46 years—4.98 inches in 17 hours.

Waves swept across highways on eastern Long Island and marooned the Montauk Point resort area temporarily.

Cohn Testifies For McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Roy M. Cohn came to the defense of his former boss, Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) Saturday as McCarthy finished testifying in his own behalf at Senate committee hearings on charges of censurable conduct.

The 27-year-old Cohn, former chief counsel to McCarthy's Investigations subcommittee, firmly backed the Wisconsin senator's stand that a controversial 2¼ page "FBI letter" was not a classified or secret document when it came into McCarthy's possession in 1953.

One of the main censure charges against McCarthy is that he was a party to a violation of the law when, by his own account, he accepted the "personal and confidential" document from an Army Intelligence officer who took it from the Pentagon's files.

Another witness testified Brig. Gen. Ralph Zwicker showed an "antagonistic" attitude toward McCarthy three months before McCarthy allegedly "abused" the general while questioning him about Army handling of cases involving suspected Communists.

This opinion came from retired Maj. Gen. Kirke B. Lawton, who said he concluded Zwicker was antagonistic toward McCarthy on the basis of a conversation he had with Zwicker in late November or early December, 1953.

Lawton had refused to testify on this point earlier in the week and the McCarthy side charged the Pentagon with "gagging" him, a charge the Pentagon denied. Friday Secretary of Defense Wilson said Lawton could testify on points "not clearly prohibited" by President Eisenhower's executive secrecy order of last May 17.

Wilson's ruling also encouraged Zwicker to give his side of the story to the special Senate committee investigating a variety of charges against McCarthy. Chairman Watkins (R-Utah) announced Zwicker will be heard Monday and said he expects the public hearings to end then.

Testimony on the now-famous 2¼-page "FBI letter" dominated Saturday's session, with McCarthy contending it bore no official secrecy stamp and declaring that, in any case, he had both the right and the duty to use such FBI material on possible subversion.

Cohn, who was a Justice Department official before he joined McCarthy's staff, testified the Wisconsin lawmaker was dead right about the secrecy label. He said secret documents always are identified as such by a rubber stamp, while the "letter" in question bore only the typewritten words "personal and confidential."

Cohn quit as McCarthy's chief counsel in the stormy aftermath of last spring's McCarthy - Army hearings.

Cohn testified at first that he never gave a copy of the "FBI letter" to columnist Walter Winchell or to any other newspaperman.

"I don't know," he replied when asked if any other McCarthy staff members did so.

Winchell testified earlier in the week he received a copy of the document during the McCarthy-Army hearings, but didn't know who gave it to him. He said he was "pretty sure" it wasn't McCarthy or any member of the senator's staff.

On another of the five groups of censure charges against him, McCarthy described Sen. Hendrickson (R-NJ) as a friend of his

Adenauer Fights For Vote Of Confidence

KIEL, Germany (AP)—At bitter odds with France abroad and threatened with political mutiny at home, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer fights for a new vote of confidence Sunday in West Germany's first state election since the death of his pet project—the European army.

One and a half million eligible voters in rural Schleswig-Holstein, known as the "Bonn Republic's Poorhouse," will give their verdict on Adenauer's leadership.

The 78-year-old German leader stressed Saturday that the world would measure Germany's present support for him by the results at the polls in this small northernmost state, which borders on Denmark and the Soviet Zone.

The end of the state campaign finds him under the gravest political disadvantages since he took office as chancellor-foreign minister five years ago.

For five years, Adenauer has promised his people political and military equality in a western alliance, but failed to win it.

Domestic political scandals, like the desertion to Communist East Germany of his security director, Dr. Otto John, also plague Adenauer.

Galled by Adenauer's insistence on always being his own foreign minister, the Free Democrats (FDP), second largest of the four parties in the Bonn coalition government, are clamoring for him to give up conduct of foreign affairs to another, younger man.

U.S. General Inspects Quemoy

QUEMOY (AP)—U. S. Maj. Gen. William Chase arrived Saturday to inspect the Red-shelled defenses of this island outpost of Nationalist China shortly after Nationalist bombers struck new blows at 100,000 Reds reported massing around nearby Amoy.

The visit by the head of the U. S. Military Advisory Group to Nationalist China bolstered the impression in this area that the United States has a very strong interest in Nationalist retention of Quemoy, close by the Red China mainland.

It is considered possible that the United States has decided to give the Nationalists all reasonable aid short of military action in protecting offshore islands while not entering into any commitment for intervention if they are attacked.

The Nationalist Commander, Gen. Liu Yu-chuang, with whom Gen. Chase will confer, told visiting newsmen he believed the 100,000 Russian-equipped Chinese Communists reported in the Amoy area "might not dare invade."

The Reds began hurling the first of 10,000 shells at Quemoy Sept. 3.

A Nationalist communique said heavy bombers, accompanied by jets, pounded military targets at 2 a. m. today on Amoy. It was the first such claim of dropping heavy bombs during six straight days of retaliatory attacks.

SHOOTS CONJURE MAN TO GET RID OF HEX

WASHINGTON, N.C., (AP) — A Negro woman told police Saturday she caught a "conjure man" without his magic shirt on and shot him to death because he had put a hex on her.

The victim, an 87-year-old Negro spiritualist-evangelist, was shot five times in his bed. Josephine Whitley, his landlady, was held on an open murder charge, Police Capt. J. M. Woolard reported.

The woman told officers the man could not have been killed as long as he wore a certain shirt with a magic packet in its pocket.

The man was known here as the Rev. Kinzo Otto Devontenno VI. He claimed he was a doctor of medicine, conjurer and magician from the Dutch East Indies.

FHA Fires Frost After Inquiry Into Favors Charges

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Housing Administration said Saturday it has fired Andrew Frost, once assistant FHA director for New Mexico, after a special investigation into charges he accepted favors, including "girlie parties," from building contractors.

In a brief announcement of Frost's removal, effective Sept. 9, the FHA gave no indication of its findings on the favors charges. Frost, invoking the Fifth Amendment against possible self-incrimination, declined to answer questions about them when he appeared before the Senate Banking Committee in July, a few days after being suspended.

Frost was not immediately reached for comment.

The FHA also announced a showdown fight this month with backers of the multimillion-dollar Linwood Park apartment project near Fort Lee, N. J., in a drive to collect the first slice of more than 40 million dollars in "windfall" profits alleged to have been made throughout the country on government-backed loans, for new apartments.

Meek Charges Douglas Spreads Fear Of War

MELVIN, Ill. (AP) — Joseph T. Meek, Republican candidate for a U.S. Senate seat, Saturday night said his opponent, Sen. Paul Douglas, is "spreading fear" of war.

"It irks me," Meek said, "when President Eisenhower is burning the midnight oil to keep this country at peace to have this man running up and down the state spreading fear, worry and doubt."

Meek, in a speech prepared for an audience at the Ford County Fair, also said the Republican party offers the voters "the record of a great President and a great governor and a good ticket."

He said he himself has made a record "against socialism in agriculture, government, labor business, life itself." Meek said he decided to run "because I believe in my way of life."

Dulles Sends Top Diplomat To Europe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles sent his chief professional diplomat, Robert D. Murphy, to Europe Saturday for a quick check of opinion in key capitals on ways of solving the European defense crisis caused by French rejection of the European Defense Community.

Murphy headed for London by plane. His flying tour also is scheduled to take him to Bonn, West Germany, Paris and possibly Rome and one or two other cities.

Officials said Murphy's "look-see" mission will be completely informal and broad enough to cover a number of political and economic questions. These include the probable effect on Europe's defenses of a congressional provision withholding direct military aid from nations failing to jon EDC and ts proposed six-nation internatonal army, including West German troops.

France voted down the plan two weeks ago, thereby dooming it, and the Italian parliament has not yet acted. EDC was ratified by the parliaments of West Germany, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg.

The American official, informants said, is not carrying any "secret plan" or even any specific proposal for ending the defense crisis.

While in Europe, Murphy is expected to confer with American officials and European leaders on various possibilities for arming West Germany.

Nova Scotia Hit By Hurricane Edna

HALIFAX, N.S., (AP)— Hurricane Edna dealt a battering blow to the western tip of Nova Scotia Saturday night.

Town officials at Yarmouth, on the tip, declared a state of emergency as the blow reached the Bay of Fundy.

There was no immediate reports of injuries but damage was said to be widespread and heavy.

Gusts at Yarmouth hit 85 miles an hour.

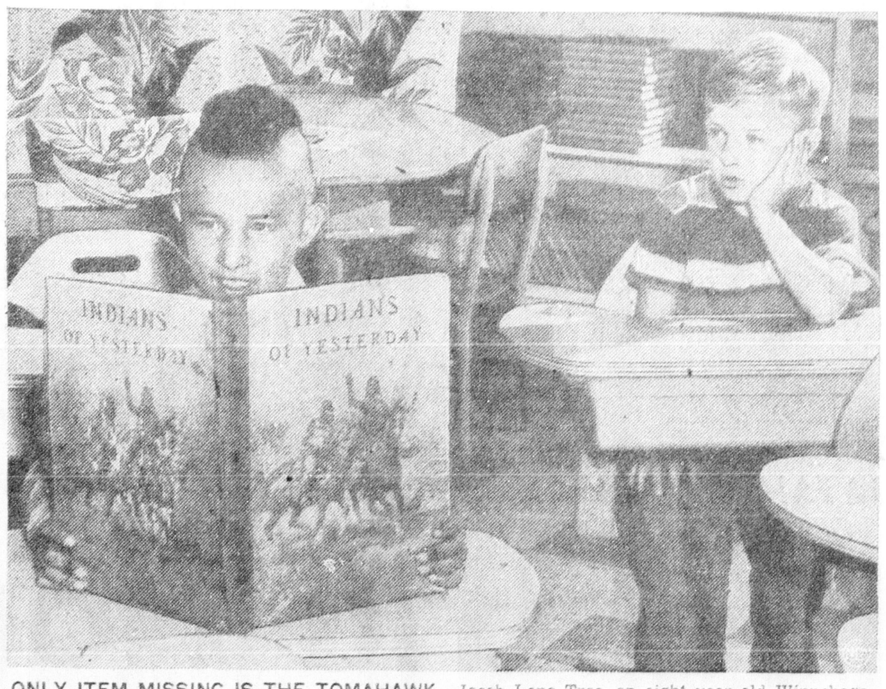

Edna was expected to pass over Central New Brunswick Province, across the Bay of Fundy from Nova Scotia, around midnight. Gusts up to 80 m.p.h. were anticipated in the area of Saint John. At 9 p.m. the wind there was gauged at 45 m.p.h.

Sixth Hurricane Develops In Gulf

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —The New Orleans Weather Bureau said Saturday night the sixth hurricane of the season has developed in the southwest Gulf of Mexico.

In the first advisory the bureau said aircraft located "a very small" hurricane — "Florence"— in the Gulf about 160 miles south east of Tampico, Mexico.

List Artists To Appear Here In Concert Series

The talent committee of the MacMurray-Jacksonville Civic Music Association has to date secured three artists for the same number of concerts in a series of five for the 1954-55 series. Civic Music Concerts bring to Jacksonville and the surrounding area talented artists at less than popular prices when purchased in book form through the Association preceding the season.

Now and until Tuesday, Sept. 14, members of the Association, those who purchased tickets last year, have the privilege of renewing their book tickets for this year's offerings. Starting Tuesday, Sept. 14, general sales will be accepted with a limited number of books available. Any or all of the concert tickets in the books are transferable.

Nadine Conner, the noted Metropolitan soprano, will be here November 12; on January 17 the E Musical Ensemble will be heard at the Annie Merner Chapel on MacMurray College campus where all of the concerts will be presented. The impresario, S. Hurock, discovered this outstanding group of Italian musicians whom Toscanini has described as a "Perfect Orchestra." This is the first American tour male by the E Musici. The twelve musicians in the unit hold first chair positions in various Italian orchestras.

On March 10 Nathan Milstein, the famous violinist, will present a concert.

Pending the outcome of the drive, which closes Saturday, September 18, unless all books are not sold before that date, the talent committee has also negotiated and holds an option on the Metropolitan baritone star.

A fifth concert will be selected and announced at the end of the drive.

Membership tickets in book form are only six dollars and are available through Civic Music campaign workers headed by Mrs. J. T. Chandler. MORGAN - SCOTT HOME BUREAU NEWS

By MARY B. ALLEN
Assistant Home Adviser

Now school has started, children are the family's main concern so let's look at some ideas in relation to them.

Help Your Child Decide

Give your child every opportunity to make his own decisions. Adults who can't make decisions, or who habitually make the wrong ones, missed a certain kind of experience and training they should have had while they were growing up.

However, you don't actually teach decision-making to your child. The best you can do is to give him lots of opportunities to make decisions by himself. It is important to start early.

For example, when you put your infant on a demand or semi-demand feeding program, you are letting him decide when he wants to eat. As he grows older, there are more decisions he can make. Which rattle shall he play with? Which toy shall he take to bed with him? If you stop to think about it, there are probably hundreds of choices you can give your child every day. And the ability to make good decisions is the result of years of practice.

It is best to guide the choices at first, that is, give him several possible alternatives. But always make sure that every choice you give him is acceptable so far as you are concerned. It wouldn't be fair to let him choose something and then tell him that what he has chosen is not acceptable.

Making a decision may be an elaborate procedure for the child at first. He'll probably change his mind several times before arriving at a final decision. This is perfectly natural because he isn't used to making such big decisions by himself. As he grows older, he becomes more experienced and what's more, he learns the outcome of his experiences.

When A Child Hurts Other Children

And what's to be done when a child hurts another child? Perhaps these "do" and "don't" suggestions for parents will help. To short time. You do this not as a begin with, don't rely on tit-for-tat punishment to "teach him what it's like." A child won't understand a grown-up's attack on him. Rather, he'll decide that this is a harsh, cruel world, full of powerful adults who will hurt him.

It is better not to demand an apology or ask him to promise never to do it again. You may get an appearance of conformity while resentment is building up underneath. That can be dangerous for him and for you in your relationships with him. Don't tell him that you like him when he is good, but not when he is naughty. Let him know that you love him at all times, no matter what he does. Try not to let your sympathy for the victim or your sence of justice make you angry. Keep your head. Stay cool.

If you catch a child about to hurt someone, quietly prevent it. You may need to hold him. Say to him, "You mustn't do that to Sally; it hurts her," or "You're hurting Sally." If you happen to be the victim, say, "I won't let you do that. I don't like it; it hurts."

If you arrive too late to prevent an accident, sooth the hurt child. explain without any hint of blame in your voice. "He should not have hurt you, but he was tired." If you think that was the case. Or "He didn't realize he was hurting you, or just he must learn."

When a child has hurt someone, take him away from the group for a punishment, but to give him a chance to pull himself together. You may say, "You're not ready to be with other children just now."

Practice the rule—calmly, consistently, firmly—that when-ever a toy or tool is used to hurt or threaten another child, that object will be taken away. Divert the child. Start him doing something else.

Try to arrange things so that the two children who have come into conflict are able to play happily together later on.

Teach a child gradually that some things are socially acceptable and some are not. When he does certain things, like hurting other people, don't like it. Be sure, however, in getting this point across, to assure him that he is liked and loved, but there are some things he just must not do.

Buy Your Child Shoes That Fit

When you select back-to-school shoes for your child, help him to avoid having weak and painful feet. Buy the shoes at a reliable store where a salesman can give as much time as may be necessary to do a good job of fitting. Checking the fit of shoes is simple, and no special instruments are necessary.

First, put both shoes on the child, lace them firmly and have him stand his full weight borne equally on both feet. Then make sure the eyelets are parallel.

Second, measure the distance between the toe and the tip of the shoe. It should be ½ to ¾ of an inch, or about the width of an adult's thumb.

Then make sure the widest part of the child's foot is at the widest part of the shoe. The ball of the foot and the ball of the shoe should be at the same place so that foot and shoe will bend to-gether.

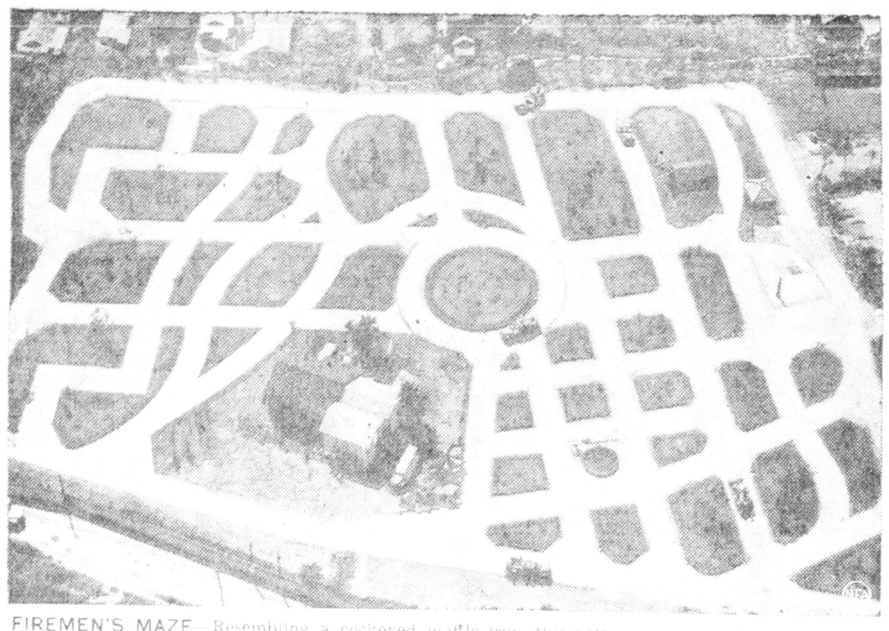

Have the child raise his heel and bend forward so that the weight of his body will be on his toes. Make sure the shoe does not gape at the sides or the back. Then have him walk around for several minutes. The shoes should fit snugly at the heel and over the instep and allow ample room for the toes.

RYE SCORES HIGHEST GAINS OF WEEK

By WILLIAM FERRIS

CHICAGO (AP) — Rye scored the largest gains among grains on the Board of Trade this week, continuing its sharp advance into the third straight week.

Soybeans also were higher while corn and oats registered more modest upturns. Wheat was alone up with losses, a development which came in the face of increasingly pessimistic reports about the Canadian crop.

Wheat closed the week ¼-1¼ lower, corn 1⅛-1⅞ higher, oats ¾-3¼ higher, rye 5½-9¼ higher, soybeans 4¾ to 9 cents higher and lard 3 to 25 cents a hundred pounds higher.

All rye contracts again made seasonal highs. There still was no confirmation of any important export business to support the upturn although the Searle Grain Co. of Canada came out with a fairly bullish crop forecast. It placed production at 12 million bushels against 27 million last year.

The excitment over the reduction in the Canadian rye crop didn't find any reflection in wheat. Canadian wheat production was also believed to have gone down drastically, but the market took this news without a quiver.

Main reason the trade didn't get excited was because Canada, like the United States, has a large carryover.

And obviously, the set back to Canadian wheat this year isn't going to cause anything resembling a shortage in the world wheat picture.

The upturn in soybeans largely represented short covering, particularly in the September future. Shorts in that month got a little nervous about the possibility the harvest would be set back a bit by wet weather.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

CHICAGO (AP) — Hog prices declined this week, butchers ending 75 cents to $1.00 lower while sows fell 50 to 75 cents. The decline was a result of a sharp break Thursday when receipts were very heavy.

Light weight new crop hogs made up the bulk of the offerings, but these included a slightly larger percentage of hogs in the 200 to 240 pound bracket. Butchers weighing more than 240 pounds remained scarce.

Pork loins at both Chicago and New York advanced $7.00 to $9.00 a hundred pounds.

Salable cattle receipts were down 10 per cent from the previous week but a third greater than in the corresponding week last year. Good to prime fed steers predominated. The supply of western cattle increased slightly, but their numbers still are small.

Average prime to high grade steers ended the week $1.00 to $1.50 higher. Heifers were strong to 50 cents higher. Top on steers was $29.00.

Spring lambs gained 50 cents to $1.00 for the week. Higher wholesale prices gave support to the live lamb trade. Supplies at Chicago were slightly smaller than last week but the total supply around the 12 principal markets was about 20 per cent greater than last year.

CHICAGO (AP) — Salable hogs 200; sows 50-75 lower; choice 190-270 lb butchers 19.75-20.10.

Salable cattle 300; average prime to high prime grades steers 1.00-1.50 higher but low prime and below only strong to 1.00 higher; heifers strong to 50 higher; cows steady to 50 highier; vealers steady to 1.00 higher; bulk choice and prime fed steers 24.25-28.00; most good to low choice steers 21.00 to 24.00; commercial to low good steers 17.00-20.00; high choice and prime heifers 900 lb and heavier 24.25-26.00; good to high choice heifers 19.50-20.00; utility to low commercial cows 10.00-12.50; canners and cutters 7.50-10.50; good and choice vealers 18.00-22.00; choice and prime 22.50-23.00.

Salable sheep none; spring lambs 50-1.00 higher; sheep and yearlings steady; good to prime spring lambs 18.50-21.00; utility to low good grade lambs 15.00-17.50; cull to choice slaughter ewes 4.00-5.50.

Eden And Benlux Ministers Work Out German Plan

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and the foreign ministers of the three Benlux countries announced "complete agreement" Saturday on methods for integrating West Germany into Western defense plans.

Paul-Henri Spaak, Belgian foreign minister, said the four agreed to attend a meeting in London toward the end of this month. A communique said any final decisions would be taken within the framework of NATO.

Eden arrived at noon on the first leg of a whirlwind European tour widely interpreted as part of a British effort to bring West Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Spaak declined to say what the agreement provided, but Britain is known to favor German entry into NATO. The Benlux countries tend to accept such a solution without much reluctance on condition that France can accept it. Eden is out to get French concurrence on his current tour.

Democrats Swing Into Midwest For Party Pow-Wow

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Democratic party, out to harvest early votes and capture control of Congress in November's off-year election, swings its national campaign into this Midwest corn-belt city this week.

Party big-wigs from throughout the nation will huddle here Friday and Saturday. The Democratic National Committee will meet. And, Adlai Stevenson, the party's standard bearer in 1952, will speak at a $100-a-plate fund-raising banquet.

Why was this medium-sized city in normally Republican territory selected for this full-scale powwow of Democratic leaders?

Party officials here aren't answering this question, not for the record, anyway. But political strategists have come up with some ideas on the sessions. Here are a few:

1. Indiana could be a pivotal state in the congressional elections. The present House lineup is mighty slim, 218 Republicans to 213 Democrats with one Independent and three vacancies. The Hoosier state is represented by 10 Republicans and only one Democrat.

The state usually goes Republican, but sometimes only by small pluralities.

2. Indiana is the home state of Paul M. Butler, a Democratic national committeeman. The South Bend politician has been mentioned frequently as a successor to Stephen A. Mitchell as national committee chairman. Mitchell has said he will resign after the Nov. 2 elections.

Soviet Hostility Toward U.S. Bitter, Deep, Kennan Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Kennan, former American ambassador in Moscow and authority on Russia, believes that Soviet hostility toward the United States is "bitter and deep" but that this "does not mean that the Soviet leaders want war.

In a book, Kennan contends that the greatest danger presented to the United States and its allies by Russia today is the constant Soviet effor to split up the alliances of free nations and create division and conflict within each of the nations.

He also argues strongly for American foreign policies aimed at avoiding war, and in effect he makes an appeal to avoid any policy which would automatically mean use of atomic weapons if war did break out.

Kennan seemed at several points in his book to take issue either with administration policies or thinking which has been identified with the Eisenhower administration. He broke with Secretary of State Dulles 18 months ago over Dulles' proposed policy of "liberation" for Communist satellite countries in Europe, Kennan then arguing that such a policy pointed toward war.

Dulles and other Republican spokesmen meanwhile denounced a policy of "containment" of Soviet expansion which Kennan had originally conceived and which was the dominant policy toward Russia during the Truman administration.

The theme of Kennan's philosophy of foreign policy is that the United States must deal with the world in terms of hard reality not in terms of what it wishes the world to be like.

He deplores what he considers an excessive reliance on the United Nations as an instrument of American policy.

Nine States Hold Primaries Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nine states hold primaries next Tuesday, following Maine's election Monday, to just about end the choosing of candidates to run in the congressional and state elections Nov. 2.

Some interesting scraps are in store next week, although by and large incumbents are running unchallenged. Sen. Upton (R-NH), serving a year by appointment, appears to be the only senatorial incumbent in a real contest.

Political experts look for Maine to go Republican as usual on Monday. But they are not so sure about the governorship.

Tuesday's two-party voting will name nominees for five U.S. Senate and 92 U.S. House seats, plus candidates for six governorships.

Feature attractions are Democratic nomination races for the Senate in Colorado and Massachusetts, and a three-way Republican senatorial battle for a New Hampshire short term involving Upton, Rep. Cotton, and Wesley Powell.

The McCarthy issue has cropped up in a House Republican race in the first New York district.

Nominees for senate candidacies will be picked in Colorado, Massachusetts, Minnesota, and New Hampshire—two in the latter. Governor candidates will be chosen in those four states plus Vermont and Wisconsin.

House candidates only will be elected in New York, Utah, and Washington. Of the 92 House seats at stake Tuesday in all nine states, 46 Republican and 24 Democratic incumbents are unopposed for renomination.

Cohn Testifies For McCarthy

—but declined to withdraw a 1953 statement that Hendrickson is "a living miracle . . . without brains or guts."

But he said the 1953 remark about the New Jersey senator was made when Hendrickson signed the report of another subcommittee which blasted McCarthy in a manner which, he said, was "completely dishonest."

There was intermittent laughter from spectators during the testimony of Lawton, who came accompanied by a Pentagon lawyer and frequently conferred with him as to what could and could not be said in the light of various security directives.

McCarthy contended throughout the Army-McCarthy hearings that the Pentagon discriminated against Lawton, and threatened to break him because the general praised McCarthy's work and implied the Pentagon was lax in rooting out subversives.

The McCarthy side has been trying to show that Zwicker was arrogant and evasive when he came before McCarthy for questioning last Feb. 18 and that McCarthy did not abuse him but rather tried to get straight answers from him.

McCarthy told Zwicker then that he should be removed from any command and that he was not fit to wear the uniform of an American general.

On the question of the "FBI letter," McCarthy declared in ringing tones that he had "an absolute right and duty" to accept FBI data on alleged subversion, regardless of any "confidential" classification. He said he would have been subject to censure if he had not used it.

In another part of the case against him, McCarthy declared he had a perfect right to describe Sen. Flanders (R-Vt) as "senile" in the light of "obscenities" which he said Flanders directed at him in speeches on the Senate floor.

The Wisconsin Republican testified his own remarks about Flanders were delivered outside the Senate—in interviews with newsmen—and he insisted his right to speak his mind about the Vermont senator was "part of our freedom of speech."

RECOVER $139,000 WITH ARREST OF MAN IN GUN FILLED HOUSE

SPOKANE (AP) — Police arrested 21-year-old man in a house filled with loaded guns Saturday and said they recovered $139,000 taken yesterday in the robbery of the Dishman State Bank.

Detectives Alfred Stoeser and Menzo A. Clinton said the man admitted the bold daylight robbery, one of the biggest in Northwest history.

They had gone to the house on a tip that a man was painting a red car in a garage behind a house on Spokane's East Side. They knocked.

"The guy let us in," Stoeser said, "and when Clinton started to look around he pulled a gun on me in the bathroom and said, 'You move and I'll kill you'.

"Well, he wound up in the bathtub and I wound up with the gun. Then he told me, 'You'll find the bank money in a suit case under the bed'."

Police said the man gave the name George Qualsling.

Ike To Hold Two High Level Strategy Meetings

DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower cut his work day short and took it easy on the golf course Saturday in advance of two high level strategy conferences here tomorrow on the Communist threat at home and abroad.

One of the conferences scheduled is an extraordinary meeting of the National Security Council, called by the President for what aides say will be a full scale review of the tense Far Eastern situation.

The other is with FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover and Atty. Gen. Brownell.

They will discuss with the President how best to use the new legal weapons which the 83rd Congress provided for dealing with Communist infiltration at home.

Cleveland Blanks Red Sox 3-0 As Yanks Lose 6-5

Art Houtteman Sets Bosox Down To Give Tribe 6½ Game Lead

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's Art Houtteman blanked the Boston Red Sox 3-0 on five hits Saturday, and the victory— coupled with New York's 6-5 loss in Chicago—gave the Indians a 6½-game lead going into Sunday's doubleheader here with the second-place Yankees.

Houtteman, in defeating the Red Sox for the fourth time, gave the Indians a final record against Boston of 20 won and two lost. That compared with a record of nine out of 22 the Red Sox won from the Yanks this season.

A fifth-inning homer by Vic Wertz, his 14th of the season, broke a duel in goose-eggs between Houtteman and southpaw Mel Parnell, who went out for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Houtteman went the distance and finished by getting Jackie Jensen to foul out and striking out Harry Agganis and Grady Hatton for a 1-2-3 ninth.

The Indians got two more runs in the eighth on a single by Jim Hegan, Houtteman's sacrifice, a fumble by reliefer Ellis Kinder, and Rosen's double.

Rosen was on the bench with a sore leg muscle for the first seven innings, and Larry Doby, Cleveland's other power hitter, was on the sidelines for the entire game, also because of a pulled leg muscle.

Until Wertz clubbed his homer over the center field fence to lead off the bottom of the fifth, neither side got a runner past first base.

Jim Rivera Hit By Eddie Lopat

CHICAGO (AP)—Jim Rivera, White Sox outfielder, was hit on the right side of the head and knocked unconscious by Ed Lopat of the New York Yankees in the first inning of their final meeting of the season.

Rivera was not wearing a protective liner in his cap. The outfielder was unconscious only briefly. He was carried into the Comiskey Park clubhouse where he was attended by Dr. John Claridge, Sox physician. First reports were that Rivera was not seriously hurt.

The Yanks had given Lopat a two run lead in the first inning on Yogi Berra's 19th homer off Jack Harshman after Mickey Mantle had walked. The Sox came back with one run in their half.

Dr. Claridge, after an examination, said Rivera apparently suffered no ill effects from the beaning. As a precautionary measure, x-rays were to be taken.

IC Football Practice Begins Tomorrow

The Illinois College Blueboys will open their 1954 practice sessions tomorrow morning as coach Al Miller put out a call for all players to be at the breakfast table at 8:00.

The first week will consist of two practice drills daily as the boys will be called back to school one week before classes start.

Although letters were sent out to some of the boys it certainly does not mean you have to have a letter to report for practice. Coach Al Miller indicated yesterday that all positions on the team are open and anyone eligible and interested in making the team should be on hand for the first week of practice.

Returning from last year's team are: Jim Adduci, Dick Barnes, Dick Capatosto, Gary Curtis, Jim Frame, Don Hazelrigg, Roy Hess, Bill Horsley, Jim Ridings and George Riley. Fred Goodey, Bob Scott and Bob Winstead are three Jacksonville boys reporting for their first flings at college ball.

Returning after a stretch in the army is Charles McKenzie. McKenzie was at IC a few years ago and returned this year to complete his college career.

As usual this year the players will be housed at the college during the first week of practice and will eat their meals at the training table.

Included on this year's schedule will be three conference games. Only four teams in the Prairie Conference play football. The Eureka, Principia and Rose Poly games will be the conference foes.

Lockman's Four-Run Homer Gives Giants 7-5 Win Over Redlegs

NEW YORK (AP)— Whitey Lockman slammed a pinch home run with the bases loaded in the seventh inning Saturday to give New York a 7-5 victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs and widen the Giants' lead in the National League pennant race to 4½ games.

New York's victory, plus Brooklyn's 5-3 win over Milwaukee, dropped the Braves to third place 5 games off the pace and moved the Dodgers back into second place.

Cincinnati, which hadn't won a game at the Polo Grounds until Friday, appeared about to make it No. 2 for the season as pitcher Jack Collum hammered a second inning homer with two aboard and the Reds led 5-3 going into the last of the seventh.

Then the roof fell in on the Redlegs, who must have thought Hurricane Edna had returned. The game had been delayed four hours as groundskeepers mopped up the water from almost 5 inches of rain since last night.

Only 3,171 fans were out, and saw Howie Judson quickly replace Collum on the mound after Alvin Dark opened the seventh with a single.

Dusty Rhodes batted for Bobby Hoffman and popped out. Then Willie Mays hit a high one to medium center and Gus Bell lost sight of the ball, which dropped for a double. Dark stopped at third. Hank Thompson batted for Monte Irvin and popped to shortstop Roy McMillan, and Judson seemed to be almost out of danger.

However, he walked Don Mueller on four balls to jam the bags, and Lockman came up to bat for Ray Katt. Whitey then proceeditd to hit the facade on the right field stand for his 15th homer of the year and his second grand slammer of the season.

BY BILL MERRIS

"Our running attack might shape up but our passing and defense are weak" is all we could get out of Coach Jim Spink after the former IC star had sent his I.S.D. Tigers through a two-hour scrimmage under game conditions yesterday morning.

—O—

The game saw the Blacks defeat the Whites 14-12 in the "choose-up-sides" affair. Al Duncan, quarterback for the Whites, scored both touchdowns and did some nice passing for the losers. Jack Rampley continued his fine play as he reeled off several long runs and played a bang-up game on defense. He scored one of the touchdowns for the winners.

—O—

The other touchdown was scored by a freshman, Mehring, on an intercepted pass. Several linemen looked as if they are about ready for the opener this weekend. Thrash, Kutilk, Schultz and Brinkman all did a good job of blocking and tackling.

—O—

Coach Jim Smarjesse gave his Rockets the day off Saturday. The Rocket coach indicated he wasn't too well pleased with the blocking and tackling of the Routt squad. "One night they look sharp, the next night they look bad," are the words of the coach from Springfield. "We are really going to have to work on our defense."

—O—

Coach Bob Kraushaar has been working his Crimson squad hard trying to find the right combination. He indicated earlier in the week that several spots are causing him some worry. He has six or seven backfield candidates all capable of breaking into the starting lineup.

—O—

The guard spots will probably be handled by veterans Woodward and Hill. Woody has been having a little trouble with his right arm but he should be ready to go by Friday. Max Roegge returns to take care of the center spot while Hudson and Knight have been looking good on the ends. Hudson's knee has been bothering him but he expects to have the trouble taken care of by the season's opener.

—O—

The tackle spots are being filled by Marquard, Symons and Stevens. All are big boys and should take care of the job. The only question concerning Kraushaar and Rosenberger is their speed. All in all it should be an interesting season for the local teams.

—O—

Jacksonville Redleg pitcher, Larry Horn, threw a no-hitter as the Redlegs defeated Murrayville 2-0 in the Roodhouse Invitational Softball Tournament. The Redlegs collected three safeties off Dale Heaton. They play the Alton Dominoes Monday in the semi-finals.

—O—

From all reports the game between the K. C. Pony Leaguers and their dads was quite a battle. The dads won 13-7 as they collected three homers and allowed the kids only three hits. The home run hitters were Hungerford and Boots Brennan. (The grass must have been awfully long.)

White Sox Come From Behind To Hand Yanks 6-5 10-Inning Loss

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP) —The New York Yankees, slowly-dying kings of baseball, were edged 6-5 in 10 innings by the Chicago White Sox Saturday and fell 6½ games behind league-leading Cleveland — the farthest they have been off the pace in Casey Stengel's six-year reign as manager.

Eddie Lopat looked as if he would bewilder the Sox again as he came up in the ninth with a 5-3 working edge. But he collapsed.

Pinchhiter Ron Jackson hammered one of the veteran southpaw's deliveries for a double. Nellie Fox sacrificed him to third. Minnie Minoso thumped another double to score Jackson. George Kell's single over second brought home Minoso with the tying run.

That was all for Lopat in his search for a 13th triumph of the season and third against Chicago.

Jim Konstanty was called in and pinchhitter Phil Cavarretta flied out to retire the side.

Moorie Martin checked the Yankees in the 10th, and the Sox exploded the winning run in their half.

Sherm Lollar led off with a double and pitcher Bob Cain ran for him. Fred Marsh was intentionally passed.

Ed McGhee, with the count 3-1, was yanked by manager Paul Richards and Willard Marshall was sent to the plate. Marshall flied out.

Then Jackson forced Marsh, Cain going to third.

Chico Carrasquel, hitless in five turns, singled to left to score Cain with the clincher. The run was the first off Konstanty in 15 1-3 innings since joining the Yanks. He was charged with tht loss.

The defeat was only the Yankees' seventh in 22 games with Chicago, but it probably was the costliest. Lagging by 6½ they have only 13 games left to play, including a doubleheader with Cleveland Sunday.

One of nine hits the Yanks got off Sox starter Jack Harshman, Don Johnson and Martin, the winner, was Yogi Berra's 19th homer in the first inning.

Jim Rivera of the Comiskeys was beaned by Lopat, also in the first, and carried off the field. X-rays showed no injury.

A crowd of 15,344 saw tht game.

Dick Vance Captures Stock Car Feature; ½ Mile Races Today

Dick Vance won the feature race at the Morgan County Fairgrounds Friday night after a see-saw battle with Francis Kelly almost the entire 40-laps.

It was a fight from the time Squatty Reed gave the starting signal until the race was over. Vance took the lead at the start but midway in the race Kelly caught the man in P-38 and passed him. However Vance came right back and went around Kelly to regain the lead. This racing procedure continued throughout the race.

Owen Alyshire came in third and Jerry Bundy captured fourth place money. The time was 11:06.70.

Francis Kelly, in his H-145 had the fastest time trial of the evening as he drove the 1/5 mile in 16:22.

The fast race of the evening was a thriller from the word go. It ended in a dead heat between Dick Vance and Owen Alyshire. The race was close all the way and probably the best four-lap race of the season. Francis Kelly was third in this event.

Francis Kelly, who has been doing some mighty fancy driving of late, won the first heat. This was a battle between Kelly and Jerry Blundy. Bud Kinzel came in third. The time for the ten laps was 2:49.57.

Jacksonville's Don Lipcaman was the winner in the second heat in what proved to be another excellend race. Lipcaman and Sonny Gross put on a driving exhibition long to be remembered by local fans. Lipcaman managed to stay ahead of the younger Gross as they crossed the finish line. Bruce Daley came in third. The time for this event was 2:57.11.

Stan Bainter's first trip to the local track proved to be a successful one as the Macomb driver won his first race. Russell Cole came in second and Bob Southwell collected third place money.

The consolation race was won by Sonny Gross with a time of 2:55.62. Russ Gilcrist came in second and Bud Kinzel was third. Sixteen cars started this even and Kinzel had the lead until the final lap. Gross went ahead after Kinzel spun out on the south curve with less than a lap to go.

Tiger Ray Black won the semi feature with little difficulty. Black took the lead and kept it the entire race. Sonny Gross and Don Lipcaman had another battle as they fought for the number two spot. Gross finally came out on top and Lipcaman had to settle for third.

This afternoon starting at 12:00 Standard Time a half mile race will be held on the local track. The first race of the afternoon will be a four car match event. The second race will pit the slowest third of the cars in a 20 lap event. The feature race on the half mile track will be a 50 lap race with the fastest two thirds of the cars participating.

Next Friday will be the final races of the year. It will be a championship race with trophies given to all winners. The feature will be for 75 laps.

Poholsky Hurls Cards To 7-2 Win Over Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals collected 8 hits to swamp the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-2 Saturday. Cards' pitcher Tom Poholsky allowed six hits all singles.

The Cards started their onslaught in the first frame. Stan Musial's double drove in Solly Hemus who had walked and a bingle by Ray Jablonski brought in Musial.

In the second inning, Rip Repulski doubled off the left field walk, reached third on a fielder's choice and tallied on rookie hurler Lauren Pepper's balk.

The Cards scored two more runs in the third frame, without even hitting as much as one safety, and tallied another two in the fifth.

A single by Frank Thomas drove in a Pirate run in the first inning and the Bucs scored again in the third on Preston Ward's fly.

Phils Sweep Double Bill From Cubs; 3-0, 8-2

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Erratic Chicago fielding—the Cubs made 4 errors in the second game—coupled by a nifty 2-hit shutout by Herman Wehmeier in the opener enabled the Philadelphia Phillies to sweep a doubleheader, 3-0 and 8-2, Saturday.

Philadelphia grabbed the lead in both games and was never behind, though the Cubs managed to pull up to 1-1 in the nightcap before falling apart defensively.

In the opener, before only 1,642 fans, the Phils scored three quick rus on three hits, a walk and a wild pitch by Cub starter Jim Davis —and that was the ball game.

Wehmeier pitched his best game of the season as he retired the first 12 batters, gave up singles in the fifth (to Dee Fondy) and the eighth (to Hal Rice), and kept the Cubs harmless.

For three innings the nightcap was a ball game, then the Chicago defense collapsed. Del Ennis struck out, after Granny Hamner singled, but the Phil outfielder reached first when Cub catcher Walker Cooper let the third strike get away. Cooper was charged with his second error when he threw wildly toward first, Hamner scoring.

In the sixth the Phils again turned one hit and two errors into two runs, and they went on from there.

Nats Get Only 3 Hits But Whip Orioles 3-0

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Washington Senators got only four hits—all singles—off Don Larsen Saturday, but they put two of them together with three walks in the fourth inning for all their runs as they whipped the Baltimore Orioles 3-0.

A total of 5,995 fans saw the hurling duel between Larsen and southpaw Dean Stone, who gave up only five hits in posting his 11th victory against 8 losses.

It was Larsen's 18th loss of the year against only three victories. Rookie Jim Lemon drove in the first run with a long fly after the Nats had loaded the bases on Jim Busby's high bouncer and two walks.

Then Jerry Snyder brought two more runs in with a bases-loaded single.

Outside of the fourth, only one Washington runner reached second.

The final round in the 54-hole tourney with a $750 first prize will be played tomorrow.

Ned Garver Hurls Tigers To 2-1 Edge On Athletics

DETROIT (AP)—Crafty Ned Garver allowed only three hits Saturday in pitching the Detroit Tigers out of a three-game losing streak with a tight, 2-1 decision over the Philadelphia A's.

Garver was razor sharp in recording his 14th victory against nine losses. He fanned five, didn't issue any walks and the lone run off him—in the sixth—was unearned.

The Tigers scored once in the second against Marion Fricano, who also went all the way and dropped his 11th game against four wins. Ray Boone started the rally with a single to center. After Al Kaline forced Boone at second, Bill Tuttle and Frank House delivered successive singles to right field for the run.

Detroit added its second — and clinching—run in the third on singles to Fred Hatfield and Jim Delsing, plus an infield out by Boone.

Ten Lettermen Back As Virginia Eyes Grid Opener

Coach Paul Morris has 36 boys from which to choose his starting eight as the Virginia Redbirds prepare for their season's opener against Chapin this Friday night on the Chapin field.

The Redbirds finished second to Bluffs in the 3-C Conference last season compiling a 6-1 mark. Their only loss was to the first place team.

The ten lettermen include Denny Young, Gale Smith, Clifford McClure, Gary Sweatman, John Fishel, Jack King, Tom Damotte, Pat Dooling and Captain Jim Smith.

Coach Paul Morris' most difficult job will be to find replacements for Bob Marr and Ed Johnson. These two boys paced last year's team and were standouts among eight man circles.

Included on this year's Redbird schedule will be two 11-man games. They play Franklin and Petersburg for their first shot at the 11-man game.

Dodgers Take 2nd Place; Hand Braves 5-3 Setback

BROOKLYN (AP) — The Dodgers regained second place in the tight National League Saturday night by backing up Don Newcombe's six hit pitching with three home runs for a 5-3 victory over the Milwaukee Braves.

The victory, Brooklyn's 2nd over the Braves, gave the Dodgers an edge of two percentage points, .596 to .594, over the now in third place Braves.

Brooklyn blasted out four runs in the first inning, getting three runs before a man was out, to give big Newcombe a lead he never relinquished.

Gene Conley started for the Braves, but he was knocked out after he faced only three batters.

Junior Gilliam walked. So did Pee Wee Reese. Duke Snider followed with his 38th home run and the Dodgers were off in full cry.

Sandy Amoros hit another homer for Brooklyn, off reliefer Ernie Johnson, before the first inning was over.

That was enough for Newcombe, who displayed his best pitching form in weeks.

Johnny Logan blasted Newcombe for a homer in the second, but Gil Hodges got that back for the Brooks in the third with his 38th roundtripper of the season.

The Braves got a run in the fifth on Logan's lead off two-bagger and Jack Dittmer's single, but Newcombe reared back in old time form and got the next three men in order.

Newcombe had a three-hitter going into the eighth when the Braves got their last run on a base on balls to Billy Bruton and singles by Eddie Matthews and Andy Pafko.

But with two out and the two tying runs on base, Newcombe got Del Crandall to hit into a force-play at second base.

The Braves threatened again in the ninth when pinchhitter Danny O'Connell singled with two out.

That brought the tying run to the plate in the person of Bruton. But all he could do was tap weakly to Hodges at first base for the last out of the game.

The Dodgers failed to gain on the first-place Giants who came from behind to beat Cincinnati 7-5. The Brooks still trail the Giants by 4½ games. Milwaukee now is 5 games back.

The Braves suffered a grievous loss when Billy Joe Adcock, their slugging first baseman, was struck on the right wrist by one of Newcombe's fast balls in the first inning.

He was taken to Long Island College Hospital where it was announced that he had suffered a concussion of the wrist but no broken bones. It was estimated he would be out of the lineup from five days to a week, a loss the Braves can ill afford in their stretch drive.

Council Expected To Act On Bids; Concrete Pipe Recommended

When the city council convenes Monday night it will have before it a recommendation of the Citizens Water Committee to use a combination of 30 and 24 inch pre-stressed concrete pipe in construction of a water transmission line from the Illinois river. The Citizens Water Committee, with 14 members present, voted unanimously Friday night to recommend prestressed concrete pipe, which they said would result in a substantial saving.

The action of the Citizens committee was based on recommendations which were presented by Casler & Stapleton, engineers, and Orville N. Foreman, special legal counsel for the big pipe line projects. The engineers and attorneys made a detailed explanation of bids submitted by 26 companies last week, which have been evaluated.

Definite action by the council in making a decision on the type of pipe to be used in the 23 mile line, and the size, is expected at Monday night's meeting.

The Citizens Water Committee was appointed last winter by Mayor Hoagland to act in advisory capacity in planning and building the pipe line which will give the community an ample and steady water supply.

The total estimated cost of the project including administrative, legal and engineering fees amounted to $2,378,923.11.

According to the report of Attorney Orville Foreman the use of pre-stressed concrete pipe in the 30 and 24 inch combination would mean a saving of the city of $387,682 over cast iron pipe of the same sizes. This figure includes interest charges over the life span of the bond issues.

Mayor For Cast Iron

Mayor Ernest L. Hoagland spoke briefly giving his reasons for favoring cast iron pipe as a material that could be counted on to last indefinitely, a factor that would justify additional initial cost. Project engineer Kenneth Stapleton pointed out that cast iron is without a doubt an excellent pipe material adding that prestressed concrete pipe is very comparable in its virtues.

The meeting, which was conducted by Carl Hamilton, Vice President of the Citizens Water Committee, was not an official one for the council. The city officials are expected to take some action concerning the recommendations of the special counsel, consulting engineers and the water committee on Monday.

The specific recommendations of the attorneys and engineers concerning the 24-30 inch concrete pipe are as follows:

Contract A. Price Brothers Pipe & Construction Co.

Contract B. Torson Construction Co.

Contract D. Ranney Methods Water Supply Co.

Contract E Caldwell Engineering Co.

The costs were as follows:

TOTAL ESTIMATED COST

Britain Tests Atom Bomber

RADLETT, England (AP) — Britain's new multi-jet atom bomber made a 57-minute maiden flight Saturday and its pilot said the trip was "like a two penny bus ride—smooth and trouble-free."

The Handley-Page Victor bomber circled over the factory airfield while its controls were tested. The plane is the second prototype of the Victor model. The first crashed last July while undergoing trials.

The crescent-winged Victor bombers, with Britain's other jet bombers, the Avro Vulcan and the Vickers Valiant, will form the backbone of the Royal Air Force's new strategic A-bomber fleet.

MIXED FERTILIZER PLANT GOING UP

The area along the Wabash railroad south of the highway bridge at Meredosia is a busy spot these days as workmen strive to get the new fertilizer plant in operation by Oct. 1 and wheat seeding time.

It is being built by the A. B. Chrisman Grain company. When completed it will have storage for more than 2,000 tons of dry materials and a mixing capacity of slightly more than 30 tons per hour. Fertilizers will be blended according to the analysis needed by the land or desired by the buyer. When completed the firm will operate a soils testing laboratory under the direction of a Missouri U. College of Agriculture agronomist.

The project was begun early in July and the last of the steel was set up yesterday. Baird Chrisman has been in charge of construction and the steel was erected by Chism & Miller of Springfield.

Sec. Benson To Speak At Olney Plow Meet

There'll be a lot more than plowing going three days this week, Sept. 16-18, when the National Plowing Matches are held at Olney.

West central Illinois will have two entries in the Illinois plowing match to be held Friday. William Coultas of Winchester is entered in the contour plowing match and Ivan Page of Ashland will compete in the level land contest. If they win they will represent the state in Saturday's national contest.

In the 20 acres of concession area, sponsors say there'll be one of the largest farm machinery shows of the year. The Soil Conservation Service has nearly 200 acres of demonstrations. Extension workers of the University of Illinois have almost as much, plus a day-long youth program, a two-day women's program and machinery-adjustment demonstrations running continually.

Benson On Program

Speakers during the three-day event will include Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson; Governor William G. Stratton; Superintendent of Public Instruction Vernon Nickell; Paul Johnson, editor of Prairie Farmer; and Senator Paul Douglas.

Youth day, Sept. 16, will be a big day for school children all over the state. Superintendent Nickell has declared the day a school holiday. And all the young people taking part in the program will receive a souvenir award, whether they win or not. They'll take part in land judging, tractor operation, dress revue and demonstrations.

Fertilizer Demonstrations

Extension agronomists will present demonstrations on the use of fertilizer put on in a variety of ways, from plowing under 20 inches deep to side dressing. They also have a completely renovated pasture, plus fertilizer and soil-testing demonstrations for other crops.

S C S demonstrations include drainage, irrigation, terracing, contour farming and other practices. Many will already have been completed, but some work will be done during the matches.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

Extra Corn Acres May Be Converted Into Green Manure

Corn producers who have exceeded their corn acreage allotments for 1954 now have an opportunity to adjust the acreage down to the allotment, according to Wallace T. Hembrough, office manager of the Morgan A. S. C. office.

This is based on a new ruling which provides that "Corn planted in excess of the allotment will not be regarded as corn acreage if it is not harvested as grain, silage or fodder and not left standing in the field later than Sept. 30, 1954."

Under this year's program, explained Hembrough, a farmer has to comply with his corn allotment in order to get price support loans or purchase agreements on his corn crop.

"Some of our farmers planted more than their alloted acreage. They can now plow or disk down some of their corn as green manure and thereby comply with allotment requirements," he advised.

"It should be clearly understood," cautioned Hembrough, "that the acreage cannot be utilized for feed in any manner, and action must be taken by Sept. 30. Any farmer interested in this matter should contact our office, Second Floor, American Bankers Building, Jacksonville, for further details to make certain that necessary followup action is taken by us."

AVERAGE SUPPLY OF FEED GRAINS SEEN

There is more feed in sight now than was available a year ago. The reason is that the cut in corn production is more than offset by a greater carry-over of old corn and by larger crops of oats, barley and sorghum grain.

More concentrates. The total feed concentrate supply for 1954-55 is estimated at 175 million tons, 4 million more than was available last year. This estimate is made by the USDA on the basis of the August crop report. (The August report forecast a corn crop of 2.8 billion bushels, or about 15 per cent less than had been forecast in July.)

Crop prospects have improved in the central and northern corn belt since the August estimate, but much of the corn in the southern part of the corn belt was completely destroyed by the extreme heat during July. Later estimates may add (or subtract) 1 or 2 million tons to the total supply of feed concentrates.

Animal numbers increase. Farmers have more animals to feed than they had a year ago. Hog numbers are up about 13 per cent, and there is a small increase in poultry. On the other hand, there is some reduction in cattle, horses and mules. The result is that farmers will probably have 3 or 4 per cent more total grain-consuming animals to feed during the year ahead than they had in the year just ending.

The increase in feed supply seems to be slightly (about 1 per cent) less than the increase in animal numbers. This makes prospective feed supplies per grain-consuming animal 1 per cent less than last year, although 1 per cent more than the average of the past seven years.

One ton per animal. Now let us look at these figures from another angle. During the past seven years the average supply of feed concentrates was 2,000 pounds per grain-consuming animal unit. During the year just ending, it was about 2,040 pounds. For the year now beginning, it is estimated to be around 2,020 pounds.

How much feed will be needed in the year ahead? Average annual use during the past seven years was about 1,500 pounds per grain-consuming animal unit. About the same amount of feed will be used in the coming year, leaving around 500 pounds per animal above needs.

(The supply of feed concentrates consists of grains fed plus by-product feeds. A grain-consuming animal unit is one dairy cow or other animals that eat the same amount of grains as a dairy cow. For example, a steer is counted as 2.1 grain-consuming animal units and a hog as 0.4 unit.)

Feed distribution uneven. While the total supply of feed concentrates is larger than it was last year, the distribution of this supply is very uneven. The government owns most of the old corn, and many farmers in the southern part of the corn belt have little or no feed of any kind.

Illinois as a whole has an average supply of corn, including carry-over and new crop. The northern states—including Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio and Indiana—all have more than average supplies. All of these states—except Iowa—also have more than they had a year ago.

The southern states have less corn than they had last year, but they produced more total feed grains than they did a year ago. The increase in total feed grains came about largely because of increased acreages planted to sorghum grains.

Frost Not Far Away-Future Farmers Meet For Training School

It's a sure sign of approaching fall when the officers of the Future Farmers of America, high school vocational agriculture students, meet at some school in the section to hold their annual leadership training school.

They usually arrive late in the afternoon, divide into groups to listen to specialists describe the duties of the various offices, gab among themselves until dinner time, eat, listen to a couple of inspirational messages and then go home determined to make their chapter the No. 1 in the nation.

This year's school was held in Franklin last week. More than 150 officers from 23 schools in Calhoun, Jersey, Macoupin, Greene, Morgan and Scott counties were there. There'd been more, but some of the huskier F.F.A. officers are out for football.

Roland F. Espenschied, instructor at Franklin, was in general charge of arrangements. This year he had a lot of help from three U. I. agriculture student teachers who have been assigned to Franklin for their practice teaching. Franklin has been such an energetic leader in F.F.A. work during the past eight years that anybody who is interested in vocational agriculture knows about the town.

They Seek How

The three student teachers now in Franklin trying to learn what makes the small chapter tick on year after year are Irvin D. Smith of Topeka, Ill.; Ralph E. Abell, Summer Hill, and William V. Burgess, Dixon Springs.

The officers convened in the small gym of Franklin high school at 3:30 p.m. Jacksonville chapter was in charge of the opening ceremonies. Occupying the stations were Weldon Becker, president; Jim Williamson, vice president; Edward VanBebber, reporter; Jack King, sentinel; Albert Wilson, treasurer; Clifton DeOrnellas, secretary, and Instructor Gerald Kuster, adviser.

Bob Hettick of Greenfield, vice president in charge of Section 15, presided during the preliminary meeting. He discussed several proposed changes in the 1954-55 F.F.A. program, particularly in the public speaking contest.

A Full Program

Espenschied then assigned the various officers and their instructors of the day to rooms. William Fortschneider, Brussels instructor, and Hettick met with the presidents. Durward Stanislawsky, Gillespie instructor, and Billie Oxley, Franklin chapter president, were in charge of the vice presidents; the secretaries met with C. D. Barrow, White Hall teacher, and Stanley Klaus, Carlinville instructor; the treasurers discussed their work with Ardell Kimmell, Roodhouse teacher and Harry A. Fitzhugh, high school superintendent; reporters practiced writing news stories under the guidance of V. E. Burgener, state supervisor, and Herman Ramsey, editor of the Franklin Times; the sentinels prepared for a F.F.A. meeting under the eye of Guy O. Petty, Carrollton instructor.

Study was over by 5:15 p.m. and a half-hour later everybody moved into the new gym for a dinner prepared and served by the Franklin W.S.C.S. The menu: baked chicken and dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, buttered corn, apple sauce, cole slaw, bread and butter, pie and iced tea.

[illegible] was the toastmaster of the evening. The theme of the after-dinner program was "What the F.F.A. Means."

Star Farmer Speaks

Larry Goodin of Vermont, who was named last June as state star farmer of Illinois, spoke on the subject "What the F.F.A. Means to Supervised Farming." Supt. Fitzhugh discussed "What the F.F.A. Means to Cooperative Action;" Larry Royer, of Assumption, state F.F.A. president, gave his views on the topic "What the F.F.A. Means in Leadership."

The principal talk of the evening was given by Calvert Dodge of Chicago, supervisor of Youths' Activities, Standard Oil company. His subject was "What They Don't Know Might Hurt You."

"People are usually for what they know and understand. Good friends result naturally from good operations and good communications and a general concern for others," he said. "Experiences will prove that face-to-face situations play an important part in human relations and friends are made one at a time. An open mind is the first step in good human relations."

"Best Wishes"—Simpson

Congressman Sid Simpson of Carrollton extended his greetings and best wishes to the chapter officers and several other prominent guests were introduced.

Yes, fall is just around the corner. The Future Farmers of this area are beginning another school year. During the summer they have completed many projects—nearly all on an individual basis. Now they have nine months ahead for true cooperation work that may gain for them state and national recognition.

Morgan Farmers Inspect 8 Ponds

Eight farm ponds were inspected Thursday by Morgan County farmers joining the soil conservation-extension service pond tour. Visits were made during the morning to the R. G. Leavell, A. R. Bloomfield, Delbert Alfdenkamp and Gus Valery farms; in the afternoon to the John Clegg, Ball Fitzsimmons, George Lukeman, Jr. and P. O. Francis farms.

Farm Adviser E. H. Garlich and Ted Pierce and Bob Troester of the SCS were at the various farms to answer questions and to point out the qualifications of a good farm pond.

URBANA—The time-consuming practice of girdling undesirable forest and timber trees by hand may soon be eliminated through the use of a new mechanical tree girdler, according to forestry specialists at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Illinois Central Forestry Agent W. W. May will give demonstrations of this new girdling machine at the Logging, Sawmilling and Forestry show on Oct. 7-8 on the John Hauberg farm in Rock Island county.

The machine, which can be operated by one man, girdles undesirable trees cheaply and rapidly. This practice kills the trees to make room for the reproduction and growth of desirable commercial timber.

THROUGH RED COLORED GLASSES

The famous British labor delegation touring the Communist world came up the other day with its pronouncements on life in Red China.

The findings really fall into two categories—those by the relatively conservative Labor Party leader, Clement Attlee, and those by the fiery demagogue, Aneurin Bevan.

Attlee's report showed that he had at least made some effort to keep his head about him, and not be swept into gales of enthusiasm for the "Communist experiment." He had the nerve to ask Chinese Chairman Mao Tse-tung to use his influence on the Russians to reduce their world armaments.

He also asked Mao to urge Moscow to give up "intrigues" in other countries and free the Iron Curtain satellites.

But Attlee was more gullible on other scores. Though he noted that China relies heavily on Russia for industrial supplies (he could have said military as well), he seemed heartened that he could find no "overt examples" of Russian influence inside China.

One wonders how he could have imagined the Reds would really spell out such examples if they were trying to impress the visiting British with their independence and their peaceful intentions.

Attlee also observed "extraordinary activity" in Red China and said he was impressed by "certain definite reforms." He was troubled at the limits on freedom, but still felt that evidence is indicated a government "based on the good will of the peasant population."

At this point, Reporter Attlee was at his worst. Whatever he may have been shown on his tour, there is mountainous evidence to support charges of severe oppression of the Chinese people by Mao's regime. He either does not read or his memory is a sieve.

As for Bevan, he once again demonstrated his almost total lack of capacity for understanding or even observing the world he lives in. Moving to Japan, he assured sympathetic Socialists that Asiatics had nothing to fear from the Red Chinese in the way of further aggression.

Moreover, Bevan said coexistence with China is now the only sane course for the rest of Asia. He said the world's welfare cannot be preserved by "dividing the world into two sharply antagonistic organizations."

If the world is so divided, it is the Communists' doing and not the free nations'. If it stays divided, again the fault cannot belaid at the West's door. Bevan appears to feel the reverse is true.

The truth is these differences can only be healed at the price of surrender to Communist aims. The political and military maurauding of Chinese-inspired rebels in Indo-China today provides the perfect situation for Bevan's glib and utterly false picture of the situation in Asia.

In sum, we must conclude the Attlee-Bevan accounts of life in China followed expected form pretty closely. The net effect is damage to the free world, for some people are likely to believe this nonsense.

POLITICS IS TWO-WAY STREET

The other day Chairman Stephen Mitchell of the Democratic National Committee complained about what he claimed was an effort to picture all Republicans as good and all Democrats as bad. We might remind Mitchell that the kind of equality he wants goes both ways.

Since the Democrats have been the opposition party in Washington, they have tried to suggest to the public that they have virtually abandoned politics in favor of responsible statesmanship. All the politics, they indicated, was on the GOP side.

Well, not quite. It is true the Democrats in many ways have behaved with a high sense of responsibility. But they have not forgotten politics, and nowadays they are playing it to the hilt.

The Democratic effort to force through a hastily drawn measure outlawing the Communist Party and making membership a criminal offense was one of the most outstandingly political maneuvers in recent congressional history.

It was inspired not by any real desire to act in a vital area of national security but by the political wish—understandable enough—to embarrass the Republicans in payment for their persistent charge that the Democrats were "soft on communism." The bill simply made the Democrats look tougher.

More recently, the Democrats have been trying to harvest political hay down on the farm. From Adlai Stevenson on down, they have charged the GOP, through its flexible farm price support law, was striking at the farmer's welfare.

Some of them evidently sincerely believe this. But more are saying it because they think the farmers want to hear it. The old high, rigid farm supports sound like a better deal than the lower flexible props.

The fact is, of course, that the old supports brought ruinous surpluses that imposed a triple financial burden on the American taxpayer. Their continuance would only put off the evil day of reckoning. When the Democrats were in power, they themselves proposed abandonment of high suppots and substitution of the Brannan subsidy plan. Today, in an election year, they sing a different tune.

And they have done some pretty wild and irresponsible warbling, too, on the subject of the general state of the economy. A number of candidates, including Paul Douglas, virtually pitched their whole campaigns on widely publicized declarations that depression was imminent.

Very likely this sort of thing is inevitable, politicians being what they are. If that's the way it has to be, all right. But neither Democratic nor Republican campaigners should offer pretense that they alone are noble statesmen dedicated to the people's welfare.

NEW YORK (AP)—Some people in America today make so much money the only way they can get rid of it is to hide it in the crotches of trees.

Howard S. Cohoon, 51, is doing just the opposite. He's one of a number of men who are finding fortunes in old tree stumps.

He is pioneering in finding new uses for pine oil, a valuable disinfectant found in cutover yellow pine timberlands of the Deep South.

"The tree doesn't contain pine oil in its growing state," explained Cohoon. "It forms only in large stumps that have been in the ground for at least 20 years."

Once regarded as worthless, the stumps are now bulldozed or dynamited out of the ground, then undergo a process of steam distillation. The products they yueld—including turpentine, paint solvents and resins, as well as pine oil—are now valued at about 800 million dollars annually.

Pine oil is used to treat sprains, insect bites, minor cuts and head colds. It serves as a flotation agent in copper mining. It also is used in preservatives and perfumes.

But Cohoon has done as much as any man to popularize it as a household disinfectant, deordorant, cleanser and laundry aid. He has a simple goal—to make every home in America have a pine tree fragrance.

In 1948 Dumas Milner, a Jackson, Miss., investor took over a small janitorial supply house. Its product, called Pine-Sol, a disinfectant, sold locally, did about a $77,000 a year business.

Looking about for someone to head the company, his eye fell on Cohoon, a former farm by with a lt of experience in the soap selling field.

Cohoon took the job, but wasn't sure at first that he didn't have a lemon on his hand. The firm had only six employes—three men to make the product, three out trying to sell it.

"The first weeks I did nothing but talk to everybody I could find who knew anything about pine oil," he recalled. "Then I decided that our best market was the American housewife herself. Why wouldn't she prefer cleaning house with a fragrant-smelling substance instead of an evil-smelling one?"

Cohoon also improved his product by putting a detergent in it so that it would clean as well as deodorize. Then he set out to get national distribution.

"At first we were bottling and labeling by hand," he recalled. "Then we got semi-automatic and, finally, fully automatic equipment."

In five years he sold 20 million bottles of Pine-Sol, now distributes it in every state and 11 foreign countries. He figures it is used in two out of every seven homes in this country.

The firm has become the world's largest user of pine oil, does a multi-million dollar business each year. Cohoon estimates it will gross 10 million annually by 1958.

PETER EDSON'S Washington News Notebook

Like Father, Like Son—Nervous?—Milk Campaign—Accident Rate—Lattimore

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Undersecretary of Labor Arthur Larson got in a good Republican administration plug for expanding the social security system in his Chicago speech before the American Bar Association, and told a good story to back up his argument.

"When you come right down to it," he said, "the critics of social security are really saying this: They are in favor of freedom, human dignity and of the individual's rights to self-respect and pride—until misfortune strikes and his money runs out. After that his self-respect, pride, dignity and freedom can go hang. . . . This is a pretty shoddy conception of American traditions.

"This isn't a question of being liberal or conservative," Mr. Larson continued. "A good conservative doesn't have to believe as his great grandfather did in every detail. The sort of thing this leads to may be illustrated by a conversation I had with an English friend, Major Millstone.

"I asked him why he belonged to the Tory party. 'Why,' he said, 'my father was a Tory, my grandfather was a Tory, my great-grandfather was a Tory, and I shall always be a Tory.'

"Finally I asked him, 'And why are you a bachelor?'

"He shouted: 'My father was a bachelor, my grandfather was a bachelor, my great-grandfather was a bachelor and I shall always be a bachelor.'"

The Pressure Of working for the government these days is sometimes too much for anyone who has ever suffered a mental crackup.

Thus, in its revision of its basic application "Form 57" the Civil Service Commission has specifically added the query:

"Have you ever had a nervous breakdown?"

If an applicant answers "yes" it doesn't mean that he can't work for Uncle Sam. It will just serve as a warning to personnel people not to assign such a person to a job having special mental pressures.

The new form also makes a new demarcation on traffic arrests and juvenile delinquency records.

An applicant does not have to note traffic violations "for which a fine of $25 or less was imposed."

And no arrests or violation of the law which occurred before the age of 16 needed be noted on the application.

To Convince dairy farmers that they must advertise and promote their products more vigorously, Department of Agriculture put on a special "drink more milk" campaign at the Pentagon.

Cafeterias in the big defense headquarters have a captive clientell of around 25,000 meals a day. Posters in the Pentagon corridors, leaflets on tables and signs in the restaurants and snack bars were therefore used for 30 days to push milk drinking.

The result was a 10.2 per cent increase consumption. One Pentagon worker in five drank more than a pint of milk a day.

Department of Agriculture points out that if dairy farmers achieved the same amount proportionally, all their surplus troubles would disappear.

One Out Of every two children born this year can expect to be injured in an automobile traffic accident at some time during his life.

This is the prediction of American Petroleum Institute experts after a study of the rising trends in accident statistics.

One other fact disclosed by this research is that more Americans have been killed in traffic accidents during the past 50 years of automobile history than in all the wars, battles and skirmishes fought by U. S. soldiers from the Revolution through the Korean conflict.

Department Of Justice and U. S. Attorney Leo Rover will present an entirely new case against Prof. Owen Lattimore before a District of Columbia grand jury. This action follows the knocking out of two of the seven counts in the original indictment for perjury by Federal Judge Luther W. Youngdahl and eight-to-one decisions in the U. S. Court of Appeals for District of Columbia.

The counts were dropped on technical grounds. Rather than go to trial with technically weak indictment, the government decided to start all over again.

Roy Cohn, former chief counsel for Sen. Joseph McCarthy's Commie investigating committee, worked on the original indictment against Lattimore when he was a Department of Justice attorney.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

'A Citizen of No Mean City'

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

"A citizen of no mean city." It was thus that the Apostle Paul described himself when he faced an angry mob in Jerusalem. The chief captain of the soldiers quelling the disturbance had mistaken Paul for an Egyption pretender who had led a murderous gang.

Surprised, when he found Paul speaking Greek, the chief captain was the more surprised as Paul described himself: "I am a man, which am a Jew of Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, a citzen of no mean city."

It was a proud moment for Paul, when they had arrested him and were about to scourge him, as he asked, "Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman, and uncondemned?"

When the amazed captain said, "With a great sum obtained I this freedom," Paul, who was reputedly a man small in stature, must have raised himself up a notch as he replied, "But I was free born."

Paul was, in fact, an aristocrat, a man of privilege and rights, in a world in which the mass of men were slaves. But what is more to the point, Paul was a great democrat.

For Paul there was "neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free."

What a world this might have been if all professing Christians from the beginning of Christionity had been as democratic and unprejudiced as Paul!

That Christian democracy of Paul was not just the expression of an expansionist mood, a general attitude of good will toward all men. It was a deep, abiding steady and persistent yearning that whatever blessedness had come into his own life might be for all.

When, as a prisoner, he appeared before King Agrippa (Acts 26), and his eloquent witness to Christian facts and faith led the King to exclaim, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian," what was Paul's reply? "I would to God that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost and altogether such as I am, except these bonds."

The great Abraham Lincoln was to speak of "malice toward none." Here, centuries ago, was a man who knew no malice, whose supreme wish and purpose in life was to make all men see the fellowship of the mystery of the new life in Christ. (Ephesians 3:9.)

He saw the Christian democracy as a society in which all were members, one of another, in which its members bore one another's burdens—while each assumed responsibility for bearing his own (Galatians 6).

It was not a society of soft sentimentalism, but of well-disciplined life, the disciples of love, in which there was no place for shirkers or slackers, but in which the strong had regard for the weak.

What a contrast between that and a twentieth century world of dictatorship and ruthlessness, in which even in the democracies so many are anything but democratic!

Manners Make Friends

Once you raise your voice or start to pound your fist, what started out as a friendly argument has deteriorated into something less dignified. So for the sake of good manners hold your temper even when you don't hold your tongue. And remember that you rarely win an argument by getting angry.

Lose your temper and you usually lose an argument.

THOUGHTS

But I have all, and abound: I am full, having received of Epaphroditus the things which were sent from you, an odour of a sweet smell, a sacrifice acceptable, well pleasing to God.—Philippians 4:18.

Abundance consists not alone in material possession, but in an uncovetous spirit.—Selden.

Try This Fruited Oatmeal Bread for Better Breakfast

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Foods and Markets Editor

With school about to reopen, nutritionists are urging parents to see to it that their children eat a better breakfast for the sake of general stamina during the day and better scholastic work.

The so-called basic breakfast (fruit, cereal, bread, butter or margarine, milk) has acceptance by leading nutritionists. It is easy to prepare, inexpensive and provides the essential protein, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals needed to supply 1/3 to ¼ of the body's nutritional needs for one day.

Quick breads, using cereals, add interest to breakfast and increase the nutritional value.

Fruited Oatmeal Bread
(Yield: 1 large or 2 small loaves)

One-quarter cup fat, ¼ cup brown sugar, 1 egg, well beaten, ½ cup chopped Brazil nuts, pecans, or walnuts, ½ cup diced cooked prunes, ½ cup diced cooked apricots, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, 1 cup rolled oats, uncooked, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½teaspoon soda, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1½ cups buttermilk or sour milk.

Cream fat, add sugar gradually. Add eggs to creamed mixture. Stir in nuts, prunes, apricots, orange rind and rolled oats. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Add dry ingredients alternately with buttermilk to creamed mixture. (To make sweet milk sour, add 1 tablespoon vinegar to 1¼ cups sweet milk.)

Turn into greased loaf pan 9 x 5 x 3 inches and bake in moderate oven (350-375 degrees F.) about 1¼ hours; or turn into two greased loaf pans, 7¼ x 3½ x 2½ inches and bake in moderate oven (350-375 degrees F. about 1 hour. If desired decorate the top of the loaves before baking with whole pitted prunes, apricots and nuts.

MONDAY'S DINNER: Cold sliced turkey, creamed potatoes, buttered carrots with minced parsley, canned green beans, soft rolls, butter or margarine, fresh fruit, gelatin, custard sauce, coffee, tea, milk.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comments on the Hollywood scene:

The news in radio is the return to the five-a-week pattern. Remember back in the early days of radio when many of the shows were on the air every weekday night? It's starting all over again.

On Monday Amos 'n' Andy return to doing a 15-minute show five nights a week over CBS. It's the same format they started with 26 years ago. Only this time the show comes from the Grand Ballroom of the Mystic Knights of the Sea Lodge, and the boys will have guest stars and play records. Sounds good. I personally liked their 15-minute show better than the half-hour production.

Among the other nighttime show that can be heard five times a week are Fibber McGee and Molly, Mr. Keen, the Tennessee Ernie Show, Mr. and Mrs. North, the Great Gildersleeve and One Man's Family. . . .

Billing battles can harm pictures. As for instance, Paramount wanted to co-star Humphrey Bogart and Spencer Tracy in "The Desperate Hours." But both their contracts would call for top billing, so Tracy couldn't be signed. Robert Ryan was almost signed for "The Conquerors." But Susan Hayward's contract stated that only one other name be starred with her. That name was John Wayne. So Ryan didn't do the role. If actors only realized how unimportant billing is.

Much ado about big screens. But isn't it odd that last year's Oscar biggie was "From Here to Eternity," made in black and white for normal screens. Ditto this year's top contender, "On the Waterfront." The test is still what's on the screen and not how big it is...

STARTED INDUSTRY

Bermuda's Easter lily industry owes its establishment to General Russell Hastings, Civil War veteran, who retired from the U. S. Army to live in Bermuda, where he discovered the commercial possibilities of exporting lily bulbs around 1875.

BODILY TEMPERATURES

No matter what atmospheric temperatures man can endure on this earth, he has a small chance of living if his body temperature ever drops to 93 degrees, or rises to 110; and even to stray outside the 97-to-101-degree range usually is a sign that something is wrong.

Kirk Douglas Urges Greater Loquacity For Western Hero

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Kirk Douglas says that because an actor is tall in the saddle, he doesn't have to be short on dialogue.

"A tough leading man doesn't have to be silent to prove he is strong," says Douglas. "Occasionally in the history of the West, straight-shooting, hard - riding hemen have been known to be talkative. It's time we had a few of them on the screen."

The actor, who is no slouch as a talker himself, gets his wish to portray a garrulous Western hero in "Man Without a Star" with Jeanne Crain and Claire Trevor. He plays a cowboy who is so human he can make a mistake now and then.

Douglas argues: "The current trend in the Western movie hero is to be superman on a horse. He has the heavy figured out in the opening scene, he can predict everything from the weather to the hideout for the gold. Never for a split second does he consider his next move through 9,000 feet of film. And if he does more than grunt at the leading lady, he's considered a sissy.

"This gives the audience assurance in the first reel of what will happen in the last."

He described his character of Dempsey Rae as "a moody guy who likes to clown, often talks too much, sometimes gets excited about people (including the heroine) and has a heck of a time in spots fumbling for the right answer to his problems."

HONG KONG SMITH walked in front. At his left were Manny Harpending and Dave Helm. On his right was Eric Stratemeyer, coatless, the cheap, nickel-plated revolver conspicuous in its holster. Behind the quartet came the Texas men.

Chuck Gorey came around the side of the jail, saw Tancred and stopped.

Tancred said, "I thought you might miss it, Gorey."

Sudden fear showed on Gorey's face. He started to back away, but Tancred halted him. "Stand still." He nodded to Kinnaird.

"Bring out Fugger."

Kinnaird waited a brief moment. "I let him out the back way."

"So ten thousand was your price!"

"No," said Kinnaird. "It wasn't the money."

"Never mind. It's too late."

He took another backward step and Kinnaird moved out of the doorway, across from Tancred. A dozen feet away Hong Kong Smith stopped. "Your half hour's up," he growled.

Gil Packard, Prosecutor Glassman, Judge Kraft and the other men who had called on Tancred a half hour ago, came around the corner and started across the street.

Without looking at them, Tancred said, sharply, "Keep out of this. It's my fight."

Eric Stratemeyer pointed. "Is that the gun with which you killed Sam Older?" His voice was a taunt.

"In spite of his faults," Tancred said, taking it up, "Sam Older never asked for the odds."

Stung, Stratemeyer sneered. Dave Helm said, suddenly, thickly, "Hong Kong, I didn't bargain for this." He took a quick step forward, made a half turn to face the Texas men. "I'll kill the first man who makes a move. . . ."

Still sneering, Stratemeyer's hand streaked for his gun.

He was fast, terribly fast, yet nine years ago, Tancred would have beaten him. Stratemeyer's gun was in his hand, spouting flame and lead, when Tancred's came up.

It was the speed of the draw and the fast triggering that was so necessary to a professional gunfighter of Stratemeyer's caliber that beat him. He drew fast and he fired fast, but his aim was not true enough. He counted entirely on his speed. His first bullet missed Tancred by a hair's breadth and his second tore through Tancred's shirt and barely grazed his skin. There was no third bullet, for Tancred's caught him squarely between the eyes.

Tancred made his half-swivel, caught Kinnaird with his gun clearing the holster. Kinnaird, in that last instant of his life, saw his fate and started to cry out. Tancred's bullet choked it off.

* * *

HARPENDING went for his gun a fraction of an instant after Stratemeyer, but he never quite got his gun out. Dave Helm's bullet caught him in the stomach and Harpending folded forward.

Hong Kong Smith was suddenly paralyzed. His hands went half-way up and he babbled: "Don't shoot—don't shoot—"

His lips twisted into a sneer, Dave Helm stepped forward. He thrust out his gun so that the muzzle was almost touching Smith. He said, "This is the way I gave it to Luke Miller . . ." and pulled the trigger.

Tancred turned on Chuck Gorey. The ex-marshal stood, his mouth wide open in fright, his hand frozen, halfway to his gun.

"Go ahead, Gorey!" snapped Tancred.

But Gorey could not move.

Then Jacob Fugger hurtled out from between the jail and the adjoining building. There was a gun in his hand. His eyes, the eyes of a madman, were straight ahead.

And straight ahead of him, his back turned to Fugger, was Dave Helm.

Fugger pulled the trigger. Tancred saw the bullet hit Helm, hurl him forward to his knees. He turned his gun on Fugger, but held his fire.

Slowly, with great effort and agony on his face, Dave Helm twisted around. His gun came up—thundered. Fugger let out a scream and hit the earth.

Helm's tortured eyes met Tancred's across the distance.

"Goodby, Wes!" he choked. Helm's eyes glazed and he fell forward on his face.

Not one of the Texas men drew a gun. Dave Helm's defection had stopped them. Or, perhaps, they were men, like Helm, who didn't like the odds—if they were against the other man.

* * *

TANCRED cocked his head to one side and watched Gil Packard come slowly forward.

"It's over," said Tancred.

His eyes went beyond the Texas men, up the street. Far away, past Fugger's Store, he saw a swiftly running figure, a girl. Behind her, at the depot, was the morning train from the east. He thrust the revolver under his waistband and took off the marshal's badge that he had pinned on less than a half hour ago.

"I won't need this any more," he said. He tossed it to Gil Packard.

Tancred was walking down the street, toward Laura Vesser, who was coming from the train toward him.

They met 10 feet from the door of the Texas Saloon. Lily Leeds, standing in the open doorway, looked at them for a moment, then turned and went into the saloon.

Although Dulles Follows Middle-Of-Road Policy In China U.S. Has Decided To Fight If Reds Try To Invade Formosa

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The most dangerous stretch of water on earth today is the 100-mile-wide Formosa Strait. World War III could begin there at any time.

The United States has decided to fight if the Chinese Reds try to carry out their threat and move across the strait to invade Formosa. This is one place where U.S. policy toward Red China is precise and definite and final. Significantly it is also one place where U.S. policy requires no cooperation from Britain, France or other allies.

No problem of relations with a foreign country has so disrupted many false starts in policy - making and has defied a conclusive solution. There still is no solution in sight today. Successive American administrations have been better able to define and spotlight the errors of the past than to foresee and avoid the perils of the future.

Today Secretary of State Dulles, who has master - minded much of U.S. diplomacy in recent years, is following a middle-of-the road course which avoids either of the two extremes of offensive action or appeasement to the extent that is possible. But it also provides no assurance of a final acceptable solution of the China problem and this seems to be a source of difficulty for the United States in getting effective support and cooperation from its allies.

The present over-all policy of Washington toward the ambitious, aggressive and ruthless young regime in Peiping can be summed up as: hold the line and play for the breaks.

The project for a Southeast Asian security pact, carried forward in the Manila conference, is an effort to build one more defensive position on the rim of Communist power in Asia. The United States already has defensive arrangements with Korea, Japan and The Philippines. It has warned Red China against the dangers of arousing American wrath by reckless adventuring at the cost of peace and security anywhere in Asia. That, at least was what Dulles was trying to accomplish by declaring early this year the threat of massive retaliation if the Reds in China go to war again.

The hold-the-line policy—which under the Truman administration would have been known as the containment policy—has its political and economic aspects. These are the aspects that currently are making most trouble between the United States and its allies. The problem of Red China's political relations seems likely to become acute in the session of the U.N. General Assembly opening a week from now.

Holding the line on the political side means denying recognition to the Chinese Communists and, as far as possible, isolating them from normal diplomatic contacts with other nations. This is becoming increasingly difficult.

Britain recognized Red China in 1950, a month after China's Nationalist government had fled to Formosa. Many other nations have followed, suit. Britain so far has avoided the logical consequence of its recognition policy—backing Red China to succeed Nationalist China in the United Nations—by a series of stalls. These were made possible by the fact that until a year ago Red China was at war with the U.N. membership in Korea.

In the forthcoming Assembly session, however, Russia will plead the case of Communist China, which—like the Soviet Union itself—has been making the motions of peace and dispensing good will on all sides—except toward the United States—for many months. It will be harder for Dulles to hold the line against Red Chinese membership than it was for Secretary of State Acheson in former years.

On the economic side the United States and its allies are as divided as they are over the political issue of recognition and U.N. membership. American officials say the major purpose of the United States in the economic field is to deny China access to raw materials or goods which would build up the Chinese economy and strengthen the power of the Communist government. To this end the United States wants to maintain its complete embargo on trade with Communist China.

Britain, however, is loosening trade restrictions with the whole Communist bloc of nations. The pressures through Western Europe favor greater trade with the Reds everywhere. The American policy of economic isolation of Red China will be no more effective than the policy of diplomatic quarantine unless means can be found to get the Allied nations to cooperate.

Cooperation in the field of defense is less difficult but often comes reluctantly from friendly governments. Secretary Dulles, in an urgent effort to strengthen the French position in Indochina before last spring's Geneva peace conference, called for creation of a collective defense in Southeast Asia. But it took more than three months for Britain to agree to help from tht united front. Meanwhile British Foreign Minister Eden, along with French Premier Mendes-France, succeeded in ending the Indochina war by a compromise which the United States deplored but accepted.

Britain's conduct in these maneuvers was reportedly motivated in large part by fear that the United States was moving toward a new involvement in war in Asia. Such fear appeared to be the specific expression of a deeper and broader British fear that the United States may do something that will set off World War III.

Many British Conservative leaders reportedly disagree in private, but much political and popular sentiment in Britain today seems to hold that the United States ought to drop Chinese Nationalist leader Chiang Kai-shek, pull the 7th Fleet out of Formosa Strait and let the Reds take over the strategic island of Formosa.

So long as present circumstances exist in the Far East the United States seems unlikely ever to take any such action.

Apart from this hold-the-line, middle-of-the-road policy which the United States is now following, there are two other policies which it could theoretically follow but which it has rejected under both the Truman and Eisenhower administration. These are:

1. A war policy. South Korean President Syngman Rhee told Congress during his visit here a few weeks ago that the only way to get a solution in the Far East was to knock out Red China by combat. His idea got a cold reception despite his personal popularity.

2. A policy of accommodation. This is the phrase the diplomats use to accept things as they are and stop complaining or hoping for a change. Accommodation means recognition of Communist rule in the China mainland and some kind of settlement of Red China's U.N. bid plus the removal of trade barriers and general acceptance of the Reds as the bosses of China's millions. Several years of aggressive Chinese actions topped by intervention in the Korean War, plus powerful support in the United States for China Kai-shek has made any kind of American accommodation with the Reds impossible for the foreseeable future.

Furthermore the Reds themselves give no indication desiring accommodation so far as the United States is concerned.

The tribulations of the American government in its China policy today are nothing new. The specific form they take is shaped by current conditions but basically the problems have been the same for several years. Possibly the biggest change in the whole situation is the decline in domestic controversy over the issue.

Once the Republican administration had replaced the Democrats in Washington, fiery criticism of China policy from the Republican side was quickly tempered with the responsibilities of action and policy decsion.

The difficulties have produced in the past not only long and difficult argument and boiling emotions, but a considerable amount of wishful thinking and what sometimes appeared to be plain nonsense.

One of the straws at which the Americans clutched in the difficult years while the war was still on in the Far East—when American policy was aimed at getting Chinese Reds and Nationalists alike to fight the Japanese—was that the Chinese Communists were somehow different from other Communists.

They were sometimes spoken of as not Communists at all but as agrarian reformers, people trying to improve the lot of the oppressed Chinese peasant.

Another highly esteemed theory which had great vogue around 1949, when Chiang Kai-shek was losing out on the mainland, was that historically the Chinese had always absorbed their conquerors and that this would happen to the Communist too. The theory overlooked the fact that the Communists were Chinese as well as men with a Moscow slant on life. It also ignored the point that absorption may take centuries whereas American foreign policy had to deal with an instant problem.

Some officials argued in those years, furthermore, that the Communists might conquer China but would never succeed in organizing it. This idea persists today as a source of controversy. But the fact is the Reds did organize China effectively enough by the end of 1950 to throw powerful armies into Korea and force the United Nations to a compromise armistice.

U. S. policies in China during World War II were devoted entirely to trying to get all Chinese into the struggle against Japan.

Two years later, in 1948, after the United States had learned from bitter experience how the Reds took over coalition governments in Europe, Gen. George Marshall as secretary of state completed the notable reversal in American policy toward China. He instructed the U. S. Embassy there that the United States would not aid any Chinese government that included Communists.

The presence of American forces in the Formosa Strait is the result of another reversal of American policy. In early 1950 President Truman and Secretary of State Acheson decided the United States would not fight to prevent the Reds from taking Formosa. The struggle between Chiang and the Reds was written off as a civil war in which the United States would not become involved.

That policy collapsed after the Korean War began. Truman and Acheson then decided that Formosa could not be permitted to fall into unfriendly hands. Truman ordered the 7th fleet to go in and neutralize the island—prevent either the Reds or the Nationalists from attacking the other.

When President Eisenhower made his first State-of-the-Union message to Congress in January 1953 he modified the Truman policy to the extent—as it was popularly put—of "unleashing" Chiang Kai-shek. He said that Chiang could attack the Communists but that if the Communists atacked Chiang the United States would defend him.

United States policy in the Far East today will leave the Communists in control of China indefinitely. Some authorities express the time period in terms of generations. The most officials hope for is that it will prevent any significant new spread of Communist power and put this country and regimes friendly to it—like the Nationalist regime on Formosa—in position to take advantage of any breaks which may develop in the future.
